

Opioid Overdose Response Awareness (Full Course) Quiz Answer Key

1. What is an example of an opioid reversal agent?
 - 2.) naloxone
2. Which of the following is true about fentanyl and carfentanil?
 - 3.) They are highly potent and often illegally-used opioid formulations
3. During an overdose, breathing begins to slow down or stop. The person may become unconscious or fall into a coma. And eventually the brain is starved of oxygen. How soon will brain damage occur without oxygen and/or medical intervention?
 - 2.) three to five minutes
4. Naloxone and other opioid overdose reversal agents act as a sufficient substitute for emergency medical care.
 - 2.) False
5. What are the most common side effects of opioid use?
 - 4.) all of these
6. In opioid overdose recovery kits, naloxone typically comes in which forms?
 - 1.) injection and nasal spray
7. Opioid withdrawal symptoms should not be a reason to avoid the administration of naloxone for a life-threatening opioid overdose.
 - 1.) True
8. Which of the following is an example of an after-event procedure?
 - 4.) all of these